

Both its operations in Canada and Ghana are located in jurisdictions with a long history of mining and exploration activities and there is an inherent understanding of the improvements to community, education and job creation as a result of mining operations and through the discovery of new deposits.

The Company operates with the highest standards at the forefront of its activities and endeavours to leave the people and their environment better off than when the Company arrived.

It places a high value on actionable efforts versus just words and has implemented or contributed to a number of notable initiatives. For example, In Ghana, the Company has worked with a number of entrepreneurs to set up businesses which have both a positive environmental impact as well as a long-term social benefit.

The Company helped set up drilling company called Deep Rock to bring in and utilize a man portable drill called a Grasshopper to use in its drill programs. This provided employment and skills training to the local community but also minimizes any environmental impact from any exploration activities related to drilling which are often incurred during the mobilization of larger drills. This company has not only improved the livelihood of the local community but also aligned their success with Pelangio's.

Further the Company helped another entrepreneur start a snail operation to produce snails for selling as food to the community and has been able to purchase bicycles for the children with the proceeds of the snail farm, who in turn benefit by being able to get to school more quickly over long distances.

This business has been highly successful and transformed the lives of those involved while also contributing positively to the local economy.
